It's four buildings filled with 62,000 feet of model-train layouts and gear displays, vendors and club champions, devoted to the most intensively detailed toy trains and miniature landscapes that have captivated kids and grown-ups alike.

Rather, in these times of widespread poverty, of physical and social ruins left by a series of civil wars and weak central governments, the criminal empire has risen to become the largest industry in the region.